

I think it is both sad and embarrassing that any area of business needs to go to a government regulator to level the playing field. I believe that businesses should be free to use any legal means needed to please their consumers and I feel that satellite radio should be no different. Simply put, if you feel you may lose market share to a competitor, improve your product don't try to change the rules.